Sinnamahoning M. E. Church.

Editor Cameron County Press:—

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER:

For the frequent helps which have come to the church through your co-operation, and for space courteously granted us in the columns of your valuable paper from time to time, I wish to make my grateful acknowledgements, and those of my people, to you. Will you kindly publish the following statement, which I will make as brief as possible.

It is my wish to publicly acknowledge the sums of money that have been given me in the interest of our parsonage improvements at Sinnamahoning, consisting of a Peck-Williamson Underfeed Furnace and Hot Air Plant, also Sink, Drainage, etc. I have two good reasons for doing this: First, the money was entrusted to me, and I wish to account for it. Second, it seems right to me that the public should know who among our representative men are practically interested in the work we are trying to do. I therefore make the following statement, which has been submitted to our Parsonage Trustees and approved by them and who join me in this acknowledgement of thanks to the following friends:

The monthly report of the Employes' Relief Fund for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company Lines East of Pittsburg and Erie shows that payments for the month of October, 1907, amounted to $124,438.43. Of this amount, $52,610.55 were on account of death and represents the payment of death benefits to the families of members, and the further payment of $71,827.88 in benefits for the relief of members disabled and incapacitated for work in the Company's service.

"A Good Fellow."

"A Good Fellow" Mark E. Swan's latest farce comedy. will be the attraction at the Emporium Opera House on Wednesday evening, Dec. 4th, and a record house would be the result of its visit here. The quality of this attraction is guaranteed by the management of our local theatre, and this together with its success in playing the big cities for the past two seasons, is proof that it is an attraction of more than ordinary merit. The play is calculated to please all from the parquette to the gallery.

Pension Increases.

Pension increases have been granted the following soldiers in Cameron county during the past week: John B. Smith, Emporium, $15; George LaBar, Emporium, $12; Henry Hiney, Sterling Run, $12.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation even to very young babies. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung-healing mountainous shrub, furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resimous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this schrub which the Doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. Sold by all dealers.

An attraction that is worthy the patronage of our theatre patrons is announced at the Emporium Opera House on Wednesday evening, Dec. 4, when Bobby Newcomb presents the young comedienne Alice Williams in Mark E. Swan's latest farce, entitled "A Good Fellow," which has been pronounced by all who have witnessd it, an attraction of merit.

IS ROOSEVELT A MENACE TO BUSINESS?

Empty Warehouses and High Prices Don't Make a Panic.

By John G. Shedd,
of Marshall Field & Co.

The real question, to my mind, is not the one proposed by the editor—"Is Roosevelt a Menace to Business?"—but something beyond that: "Are we facing a real panic or merely a passing flurry? As to our President, I give him credit for entire honesty, sincerity and singleness of purpose. But for a man in his exalted and powerful position his utterances have probably been incautious. So much hangs upon his words that they are not received as would be the statements of any other man; the people are used to reading between the lines of an utterance from the Chief Executive of the nation, of feeling that there is a reserve of meaning behind even temperate statements from such a source. Therefore it is quite likely that President Roosevelt's outspoken words—on the occasion of his recent visit in the South, for example—have had an alarming effect upon the financial public. And it is quite possible they have been taken to indicate a degree of radicalism which he does not really feel.

But the practical questions of the present moment are these: Is the present financial disturbance only a currency flurry or the beginning of a serious panic? And what is the immediate precaution or remedy to be applied? These are the questions which ought to b econsidered in preference to the one proposed to me.

No; I do not believe we are facing a serious panic. As I see it, the country is suffering temporary penance for overspeculation—particularly for overspeculation in Wall Street. Why do I believe we are not confronting a general panic? Naturally I look at it from the merchant's viewpoint. I have never observed anything like a panic of more than local ecope which did not present this condition; the warehouses of manufacturers filled with goods which had to be put on the market and sold at nagging prices in order to enable the manufacturers to meet pressing obligations. Not only have I never observed a real panic which did not start with this situation, but I have never read of one.

Now, what are the conditions in the manufacturing world to-day? There is scarcely an exception to the statement that there is not a warehouse of a manufacturer or of his selling agent or distributor which is stocked with unsold goods. Most of the factories from which the wholesale merchant of the great city buys his wares are sold for many months to come. My observation is that the most of the large factories have already sold their entire winter output and some of them are sold out far beyond that date. This is not the setting for a panic scene. It is exactly the reverse.

In this country the farmer is the great actual producer, and it is to him that the merchant instinctively looks when he wishes to get a line on the real situation. How about the farmer to-day? He has abundant crops which are in keen demand for the feeding of the world—and in demand at exceptionally high prices. There is hardly a single locality of which this is not true. It must be remembered that the export trade of the United States, in almost every line of staple produce, has increased tremendously within the past few years. And whatever we sell to other nations brings what we most need at the present—money, gold.

There is still another vital fact in the farmer's situation. He is not in debt and trying to "dig out," on the contrary, it is not too much to sey that, as a class, the farmers of to-day are not only out of debt but have money in the banks and out at interest. Again I say, that is not the setting for a panic; I have never seen a panic which had this sort of a basis. And I do not believe there ever has been one or will be one now.

In speaking of the farmer there is only one word to say; he is the basis of the structure to-day, and if he pursues a normal course the currency flurry will soon be smoked out. He has the real tangible and basic wealth, the world at large wants it and stands ready to pay good prices for it. If the farmer takes his profits and does the natural and normal thing with them—puts them in his local bank, just as he has been doing right along—then he and the merchant and the railroad and the city banker will be all right. But if the farmers of the whole country should allow themselves to become frightened and withhold their money from deposit and from circulation they can make trouble. The responsibility of the outcome, not of the origin, of the situation seems to me to be clearly in their hands. And I believe that they are big, broad and farsighted enough to recognize this and act accordingly.—Saturday Evening Post.

The Foolishness of Locking Up Money.

That a very great many persons are drawing their money from the banks and locking it up in safety deposit vaults or carrying it home and hiding it in various places is a fact that every bank and trust company has noted. These who do this foolish thing have an idea that they are protecting themselves. They are not. They are simply aiming a blow at the prosperity of the country, which is also their own prosperity.

And what are they doing it for? Can any one of them tell?

Are they afraid that the railroads are going to be fined so heavily that dividends will be interferred with or passed entirely? Do they believe, because some financial sharks have been robbing street car lines, that the whole country is under tribute to financial conspirators? Do they fear that because some speculators got hold of a bank or two rottenness prevades the entire banking system, and that falures throughout the land may be looked for?

Of course, this is all very absurd, but the fool will run from another foot's joking cry of fire in a theatre just as fast as he will from the real thing. Frighten him a little, even if there is no cause for alarm, and away he goes.

Now, there is no trouble with the banks. There is no trouble with business—except the lack of money. That is all.

And for that lack of money the foolish man who locks his money up and prevents it from circulating is at fault.

The hoarder congratulates himself upon his abstuteness. He never stops to think that he and those who think with him are inviting disaster upon their own heads. Great enterprises cannot be carried on without capital. Business cannot be brisk if money cannot be had. Mills and factories must discharge their men unless they can procure money or credit. With mills closing and throwing employes out of work, with decreased business, necessitating the discharge of clerks from the stores, what would become of the man who refuses to permit his money to remain in the banks? He would be dischargd with the rest, and—he would be responsible for the shut down.

We have not reached the point of closing mills as yet except in a very limited degree. We shall not reach it at all if this absurd and childish movement to withdraw deposits is stopped. All that is needed is that confidence which will bring the money into the banks and allow business to get back into its usual channels.

A Fine Concert.

The Ithaca Conservatory Concert Company which is to appear in Emporium on Dec. 5, is highly recommended by the public press. The Company is composed of four mombers: Miss Bessie Stangnatt, reader; Miss Isabel Chandler, Violinist; Miss Blanche Lumley Pianist and Mr. Alfred P. Aowes, Baritone. This Company has met with great success everywhere and the concert to be given in Opera House will afford to the music lovers an evening of keen enjoyment. The following notice appeared in the Altoona Evening Gazette, Altoona, Pa.:

"The Ithaca Conservatory Company appeared before a large and appreciative audience Saturday night, in the Fifth Avenue Methodist Church. The Company, though splendidly recommended, exceeded the expectations of the people. The almost continuous applause of the audieuce attested their enthusiasm. The consensus of opinion is "come again." For benefit of Presbyterian Church.

MRS. BARBARA HOUT, aged 42 years and 16 days, wife of Michael Hout, died at the family home on West Allegany Avenue, last Friday morning, after a long and painful illness. Deceased leaves a hushand and four sons, the youngest being but five years of age. The funeral took place from St. Mark's Church, Sunday afternoon. Deceased was a good woman, faithful and true. She labored hard to rear her children and succeeded admirably. Albert, her eldest son and a good boy at that, is now past twenty. Deceased was respected by all who knew her, the large floral offerings being tokens of esteem from relatives and friends.

PIPER.

MRS. PATIENCE AMANDA, wife of Geo. S. Piper, aged 65 years, died on Sunday, Nov. 24th, 1907, at the family residence, East Fourth street, after an illness of ten or twelve years, most of the time being unable to walk. Deceased leaves a husband and seven grown up children—four girls and three boys—to mourn her death, viz: Mrs. Robt. Howell, Altoona, Pa.; Mrs. L. R. Jones, Sterling Run; Mrs. A. R. Walter, Richwood, W. Va.; John M., Mrs. M. E. McSwan, Geo. A. and Samuel A., at home; also twenty-two grand-children and one great-grand-child. Mrs. Piper came to this county in 1881. Mrs. Piper lived an exemplary life, was a truly good christian woman and her every thought was for others and not of herself. In all her long years of suffering she was never heard to complain, and all her words were fraught with kindness, sympathetic and tender. She loved much and was loved much in turn by all who knew her, and in her death Emporium loses a noble woman. The funeral took place from the M. E. Church yesterday afternoon at three o'clock, Rev. N. E. Cleaver officiating; interment being made in Newton cemetery.

The following relatives and friends from out of town attended the funeral: Geo. Conway, wife and son Renovo, Ed. McSwan, DuBois; Mrs. Jas. Conway, Mrs. Annie Walter, Richwood, W. Va.

ORTON.

Mrs. John H. Day and her brother, Arthur, who has been visiting in Emporium for several weeks, hastened to Brooklyn, N. Y., on receipt of a telegram last Friday announcing that their father was very low. A later message, after they had started, conveyed the sad intelligence that Mr. C. F. Orton had passed away. Mr. John H. Day left for Brooklyn on Saturday noon train. Funeral services over the remains of deceased took place on Sunday afternoon, at the Presbyterian Church, interment being made the following Monday. Deceased was about 72 years old and had been a sufferer with heart trouble for several years. He came to Emporium last summer and remained here for several weeks, the outing evidently greatly benefitting him, for when he returned home to his office work he was much better. Mr. Orton was a pleasant, genial gentleman and made many friends here. He leaves an invalid wife and one daughter and one son to mourn his death. The family are indeed deeply afflicted and the PRESS extends its sympathy.

FIRE AT NEW WARNER.

Fire was Discovered by the Girls, who Were Almost Suffocated.

HOUSE DAMAGED BY WATER

The Fire Started in the Laundry Basement—Inmates Escaped in Night Clothes.

Fire was discovered at the New Warner about three o'clock this morning, by one of the young ladies connected with the hotel, who awoke almost suffocated. She gave the alarm and all occupants of the appartments over the kitchen made their escape, clad only in their night clothes. The smoke was so dense that it is a miracle they were able to get out alive. The fire originated in the cellar under the kitchen and had a good start before discovered, and being in between the wall, was a stubborn one to fight. The damage by fire and water to this popular house is heavy. After the fire was subdued the effects of the occupants of that part of the house were removed without much damage, except a general mixup, which can only be straightened out by the parties concerned.

The unfortunate fire at this time will be a severe loss to the proprietor, Mr. Wm. Schutte who had prepared an elaborate dinner for to-day, all of which was destroyed by smoke and water. While the sleeping section of the house will be in shape to care for the guests, it will be a few days before the wing, in which the kitchen is located, will be put in shape for business.

Author's Early Life.

J. Fennimore Cooper was considerably older than his village. He was born in Burlington, N. J., in 1789, and was a year old when his father moved to the great estates by Otsego lake, in New York, from which Cooperstown was later to take its name. As training for his literary career Cooper had village schooling, part of a course at Yale and about five years at sea. He was past 30 and had a wife and six children before he thought of authorship.

Why the Surplus of Widows.

Why does the proportional number of widows increase steadily? asks a Swiss journal, and gives in reply several reasons—the men are engaged in more hazardous occupations; they waste too much time in taverns, drinking and squabbling over politics; and they generally burn the candle at both ends. Hence, the insurance companies are beginning to ask a higher rate of men than of women.

Overworked Motor Cars.

There is no doubt that many cars to-day are being practically worked to death, and if the truth were known it would be found that a good many of the so-called lazy chauffeurs are quite as much overworked as their cars in their struggle to drive them every day and almost all day, not to mention night work, and at the same time keep them in proper running order.—Autocar.

Natural Sleep.

It behooves us to remember that natural sleep is the heritage of man, that it is in our power to conserve it for him, and that we are responsible for guarding him against the misuse of such drugs as may rob him of the sweet sleep which was his possession before the evil times of yesterday.—London Hospital.

"Savagery Recommended."

We have too long been out of touch with wholesome savagery. Surely it is only our conservatism and conventionalism that prevent us from choosing camp life, not as a mere pastime for the strong, but as the healthiest mode of summer life for all.—Good Health.

American Capital in Chili.

Several millions of American capitalist are invested in the copper fields of central Chili, the gold fields of the extreme south and the nitrate fields of the north. The best of feeling prevails toward Americans and American goods.

Even Then.

Housekeeping.

One's mental attitude toward housekeeping will make it drudgery or otherwise, and much depends upon the condition of the mind when performing the work as to whether fatigue is experienced when night time comes.

NEEDS OF FILIPINOS

PROGRAM FOR CONGRESS IN AFFAIRS OF THE ISLANDS.

Governing Body Is Urged to Grant More Favorable Terms for the Admission of Their Goods to United States.

No dispassionate observers of affairs in the Philippines ever leave long unspoken the wish that congress may cease listening to the blindly selfish demands of the sugar and tobacco interests and give the Philippines more favorable terms for the admission of their commodities to our markets. The Lake Mohonk conference, which has just finished its annual session, puts this subject at the head of that part of its platform which deals with the Philippines. It makes no imputations against congress for its motives in the past, and asks in a conciliatory spirit for nothing more than "a radical reduction of duties," when no doubt its members unanimously believe that simple justice requires free trade in all commodities. If the next congressional session passes without action to this end congress will be more than ever open to accusation for its neglect.

The other suggestions of the conference make together an interesting program. It asks that special emphasis be put on the primary schools of the islands, especially with the object of preparing the pupils for industrial occupations. It believes that congress could properly appropriate funds from our own treasury for this purpose, but it thinks that reduced tariff duties will add to the prosperity of the islands, increase taxable property and taxes and so indirectly provide the needed funds. Education in the duties of citizenship is also urged.

As for increased powers of self-government, it contents itself with this plank: "So fast as the Filipinos demonstrate their political capacity, powers of self-government should be granted and enlarged." It recommends legislation by congress enabling a large number of persons in the islands to be naturalized as citizens of the islands. Planks for the suppression of the opium trade and for the permanent suspension of the coastwise shipping act so far as it applies to the islands are also included.

After praising the administrative work of the officials of the bureau of insular affairs in the war department, the hope is expressed that this bureau may ultimately be taken out of the hands of the war department and placed under officials whose experience is primarily that of civil life.

Most of these suggestions will be generally commended. Those concerning the material welfare of the islands are in crying need of immediate adoption.

Mr. Roosevelt at Vicksburg.

Though he spoke to the people of Vicksburg on a subject of vital interest to all residents of that region, the subject of improving the levees by federal assistance so that the terror of floods may pass away from a broad district of marvelous fertility, President Roosevelt's most striking words had reference to another matter.

He had been introduced to the great audience of Mississippians by the Yazoo valley's most conspicuous citizen, Congressman John Sharp Williams. There in the chief city of the Yazoo delta, throughout practically the whole extent of which every bale of cotton is taxed $1 for levee improvements the people naturally received with enthusiasm this declaration made by the chief executive:

"In my next message to congress I shall advocate as heartily as I know how that the congress now elected shall take the first steps to bring about the deep channel way and the attendant high and broad levee system which will make of these alluvial bottoms the richest and most populous agricultural land not only in this nation but on the face of the globe."

But the president said also, and the public will believe that he spoke truly:

"Mr. Williams has said that for a day we can sink all mere party differences. Since I have been president I have found that most of the time I have needed to sink them, because the differences of party are of small importance compared to the great fundamentals of good citizenship upon which all American citizens should be united."

This is a lesson which Americans everywhere ought to learn.

Rates and Values.

Would the tariff revisionists not have been satisfied with a reduction of 30 per cent. from the Dingley rates? Would they not have been satisfied with a reduction of 20 per cent.? Would they not have been satisfied with a reduction of even 15 or 10 per cent.? Of course they would.

But they have got the equivalent to a reduction of anywhere from 20 to 50 per cent. in the new method of valuing imports for dutiable purposes. Yet they boldly keep on asking for a revision of rates. What does the foreign exporter care for rates when he can put his own value on his goods?

On Higher Ground.

In New York Mr. Bryan discussed "The Average Man." This is a change from his usual policy of talking about Democra'

TAFT'S CALL AT BERLIN.

Folly to Attribute Political Significance to Visit.

Some alarmists are professing to see sinister signs in the decision of Secretary Taft to return to the United States by way of Berlin. They affect to spell serious international complications in the visit to the German capital to the exclusion of the other European political centers. They declare that there must be something hidden from the public view that makes for war and causes the "Secretary of Peace" to hurry to adjust affairs.

This is rather cool weather for such talk. The silly season passed some weeks ago. Men have returned to a normal basis of reasoning and action, and it is surprising to find that Judge Taft's itinerary is being interpreted in such pessimistic terms. That itinerary was arranged before he left Washington, and the inclusion of Berlin was merely part of the general plan of the secretary to go back to the United States in the shortest possible time. He is not on a round of visits to foreign capitals. He left here to go to our most distant island possessions, there to observe conditions and to set in motion the process of representative administration. On the way he stopped in Japan, to what good effect the country now thoroughly understands. But this was strictly on his line of travel, and in his line of business.

If there is any foreign complication affecting the United States of which the public is unaware, any hidden danger to the peace of the world, the work of adjustment belongs to the department headed by Secretary Root. This government would never make so serious a mistake as to commission its war secretary to drop in on the kaiser on his way around the world to settle a trouble of first consequence. They do things differently on that side of the water. They have foreign offices and fully equipped diplomatic corps, and established lines of communication, and a diplomatic visit from the war minister of the United States might be awkwardly interpreted.

Secretary Taft is entitled to come home by any route he may select, after so arduous a journey. If he wants to pay a call on the German emperor in passing he will of course be warmly received, and as the head of the American war department he will doubtless be shown much that is of great interest to him. But his pause in Berlin need not cause embarrassment in any quarter or arouse the least anxiety lest this country is menaced by a hidden political mine. We are not in the intriguing business and our diplomacy is open and aboveboard.

FAVORS REVISION OF TARIFF

Prominent Chicago Newspaper Indorses Senator Beveridge.

A strong appeal of the senior senator from Indiana for a commission to deal scientifically with the problem of tariff revision is part of Mr. Beveridge's presentation of his views on the tariff from the Bryan and Beveridge debates, now appearing in The Reader magazine.

It is needless to say to the readers of The Evening Post how heartily we concur in Senator Beveridge's plea that the consideration of the complex and difficult problems of our present protective policy should be at first given over to a permanent non-political or non-partisan body of experts. In other words, the first stage of our dealing with the tariff should be scientific, devoted to a full, free study of the subject. It should be broadly and thoroughly and dispassionately dealt with.

The conclusions reached by such a commission, after such an examination, should, and if present signs are to be credited will, not only provide for the most intelligent amendment of the present system by the congress, but will insure a progressive development of that system as experience justifies.

Senator Beveridge emphasizes the deliberateness with which the Germans acted in tariff legislation and urges the reasons against consideration of tariff problems during the heated partisanship of a campaign.

Necessarily brief as is Senator Beveridge's discussion of his subject, it would seem that he has given succinctly but adequately the views of the main revisionist wing of the Republican party. These are the conservative-progressives who oppose the stand-patter on the one hand and the immediate revision extremist on the other. The views of Senator Beveridge are views which have the weight of the party back of them, and they will prevail.—Chicago Evening Post.

Beyond Power of Democrats.

How can Mr. Bryan be expected to put all of his eggs in the tariff basket? He knows that his party is no more united on that issue now than it was in 1894, when, in an effort to legislate on the subject, it went all to pieces. It could, now as then, whoop up things on the stump and ring all the changes on the robbery of protection, but it could no more prepare now than then a tariff bill which would cut out protection or fail to disclose the humbuggery of its campaign oratory and promises on that subject.

"There is nothing in the country to be alarmed about," says Mr. Bryan. No, not even Mr. Bryan.

GRAND LARCENY AND FORGERY

ARE ALLEGED IN INDICTMENTS OF BROOKLYN BANKERS.

THREE MEN ARE ARRESTED

Two are Released on Giving $20,000 Bail and the Third, a Former President of the Borough Bank, Is Jailed.

New York City. — The Kings county grand jury, which is investigating the recent management of the suspended Borough bank, of Brooklyn, on Thursday returned indictments charging larceny and other offenses against Howard Maxwell, who was president of the institution when its doors were closed; Arthur D. Campbell, the deposed cashier, and William Gow, a director who holds a controlling share of the bank's stock.

These three men are jointly charged with grand larceny in the first degree in the misappropriation of $145,000 deposited by the executors of the Carrie M. McGuire estate. There is a second indictment for grand larceny against Maxwell, who is also indicted for forgery in the third degree. A second indictment against Campbell charges forgery in the third degree. In addition to the grand larceny charge Gow is indicted on four counts alleging misdemeanors in the matter of overdrafts. He is charged with having overdrawn his account to the amount of nearly $24,000. Maxwell also, it is alleged, secured overdrafts aggregating nearly $73,000.

Following the report of the jury the three men were arrested and arraigned. All pleaded not guilty and were held for a hearing. Campbell and Gow each furnished $20,000 bail. Ex-President Maxwell was unable to secure the $30,000 bond required of him and went to jail for the night.

The larceny charge grew out of the establishment of the International Trust Co., of which Gow is president. The executors of the McGuire estate some time ago deposited $145,000 of the estate's cash in the Borough bank. The following day, it is alleged, upon Gow's order, approved by Maxwell, Cashier Campbell drew a check for $145,000 against this account and turned the check over to the Oriental bank, the depository for the newly organized International Trust Co. This check, it is alleged, was used to make up the $1,00,000 capital and surplus required before the new bank was permitted to open. This money was returned to the Borough bank as fast as the stock of the International was disposed of, and all was returned with the exception of $28,000. For this balance a note of F. W. Doolittle, the private secretary of Gow, was put in.

The indictments for forgery concern the last quarterly statement in which the overdrafts of the bank were represented as $201, whereas it is alleged they really totaled some $24,000.

All of the crimes are alleged to have been committed since the first of the present year. It is understood that the inquiry into the Borough bank's affairs is not concluded.

BOGUS TAX RECEIPTS.

They Will Figure in the Trial of a Former Judge of Common Pleas Court at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa.—A hearing in the alleged bogus tax receipt cases began in criminal court Thursday, but was adjourned until to-day, soon after a jury had been secured, because of the absence of material witnesses for the prosecution. District Attorney Harry L. Goehring was overruled on a motion for postponement for the same cause when the case was called.

State Senator Elliott Rodgers, a former judge of common pleas court; Samuel J. Grenet, director of public safety of Allegheny; Common Councilman William Hogel and William J. Lamb, a clerk in the county recorder's office, all prominent Allegheny republican politicians, were indicted for procuring and distributing among voters fraudulent tax receipts prior to the election in the fall of 1906. Rodgers' was the first case called, and because he had been on the bench with the present judges they preferred not to hear the case. Judge William D. Patton, of Armstrong county, was called here to preside.

It is charged that politics has much to do with these cases and that the prosecution is a phase of the struggle for supremacy between the Penrose and Flynn factions in Allegheny county. District Attorney Goehring and his supporters indignantly deny this. The defendants accuse the prosecution of star chamber methods in presenting the cases to the grand jury without preliminary process in minor courts, and in refusing them particulars of charges made by witnesses so that they may know what to meet in defense.

The prosecution charges that its witnesses have been tampered with. G. H. Bristol is one of the missing witnesses and the district attorney filed an affidavit stating that Bristol is probably in St. Louis; that on November 18 he gave the district attorney one of the alleged bogus tax receipts, saying he had voted upon it and had promised to be present and testify at the hearing. Attachments have been issued for the other missing witnesses.

Five Children Burned to Death.

Titusville, Pa. — Awakened by the barking of his dog early Thursday, Thomas W. Zuver, an oil producer living east of here, found his house in flames. He saved his wife and their baby. Two sons escaped from the second story, but were badly injured. Five children were burned to death.

Hearst Is Held for Libel.

New York City. — Justice Wyatt in the court of special sessions Thursday held W. R. Hearst for the grand jury on a charge of criminal libel preferred by William Astor Chanler.

A FACT.

A curious world it is forsooth,
Where nobody wishes to hear the truth!

If a woman queries, "Do I look well?"
Does she always wish me the truth to tell?
No!

If my chum says: "How do you like my clothes?"
Does he wish the actual facts, d'ye s'pose?
No!

If a singer says: "Do you like my voice?"
In your sweet reply have you any choice?
No!

If some mothers ask: "Isn't baby cute?"
Do you think a truthful reply would suit?
No!

If a girl should ask: "Do you love me, dear?"
Would she like the absolute truth to hear?
Not much!

In fact, would it always be well for you
If the world's opinion of you you knew?
Hardly!

It's a curious fact, that no one denies,
We don't like the truth, but we do like lies.
That's right!

How He Did It.

A well-known officer has a beautiful daughter. A young ensign, with no resources but his salary, fell in love with her, and asked the old gentleman for her hand. The father at once told him that he had hardly enough to keep him in white gloves and to burnish his brass buttons.

"Well, admiral, what you say is true; but when you married you were only a midshipman, with even a smaller salary than mine. How did you get along?" asked the ensign, who thought he had made a good defense.

But not so. The crafty old sea-dog thundered forth:

"I lived on my father-in-law for the first ten years, but I'll be hanged if you are going to do it."

Spiking Her Guns.

"John, I think it was real mean of you to—"

John laid down his paper, and turning to his wife, said, wearily: "Before you say any more, my dear, I admit that I am selfish, cruel, heartless and mercenary. I am devoted to my club, dislike my home, stay out late at night, do not consider your feelings, do not realize what a hard lot you have in life, and get all the pleasure I can myself. Now, go ahead."

But there was nothing more to say. —Life.

Signs of the Same.

"Accidents are frequent on this part of the road, are they not?" asked the traveler.

"No, sir, they are not," answered the indignant conductor. "Why do you think so?"

"Because," replied the traveler, as his eyes roamed on the succession of laundry confidences which decked the landscape, "I notice there are wash-outs all along the line."—Baltimore American.

An Old-Time Thanksgiving

BY BERTHA E. BUSH

"THE parson hath appointed a day of Thanksgiving for this village that the cruel tide of Indian invasion is turned back and our lives are spared," said Mistress Lovejoy Goodwin, bustling into the warm kitchen where her sister-in-law Mistress Prudence Goodwin sat knitting by the fireplace and her listless daughter, young Mistress Patience Halcomb, bent languidly over the spinning-wheel.

Mistress Prudence made a sign for silence, but it was too late. The face of the pale young widow grew whiter, and without a word she rose and glided away.

Mistress Lovejoy looked at her sister-in-law inquiringly.

"Hath she not yet become reconciled to the decree of God?" she asked. Mistress Prudence shook her head. "Nay," she said. "She saith ever that it is not by the decree of God she suffers, but by her own wilfulness. If she had not come away from her husband against his desires—so she saith ever—she would at least have died with him."

"That is wicked repining,' said the aunt sententiously. "She ought to be dealt with by the meeting. She should be thankful that her life was spared when her neighbors were taken. Doubtless it was a leading of the Spirit that caused her to come here e'er the savages fell upon Wyoming. She, above all others, surely has reason to be thankful. You should deal with her, sister, and check this untoward spirit," said Mistress Lovejoy sternly. Mistress Prudence sighed.

"I know not rightly how to do it when she is in such sorrow," she said. "She hath ever been a willful and unreasonable child, but a very loving one."

"You have ever spoiled her, and her husband did the same. Perhaps this is a punishment to you both," said Mistress Lovejoy.

Mistress Patience, a bride of a year, had left her home in Wyoming valley for a visit with her mother in an older settlement. She had begged and pleaded to make this visit with a willful demand that would not be denied. It was an unusual occurrence. The journey through the wilderness was too long and toilsome to think of visits. Most of the mothers who said farewell to daughters going to pioneer homes could hardly expect to see them again. But Mistress Patience—who was anything but patient in spite of her name—would not submit to this state of things. She begged and pleaded to go until her husband—to whom her lightest wish was law—gave his consent. He was the more ready to do this as there were ugly rumors of alliance between the British tory forces and the Indians and the settlement of Wyoming, standing on a disputed tract, and not so well protected as other regions was peculiarly liable to attack. But Mistress Patience did not know this or she would not have gone. She was very much in love with this grave, middle-aged husband, who treated his young wife like a petted child. Many of the settlers had shaken their heads over Mistress Patience's going. "He ought not to let her do it," they had said.

"I will only stay a little while. I will come back soon," she had said at the parting, regretful at the last minute for her action. But the savage Indians had come down upon the village of Wyoming and swept it off from the face of the earth. The houses were burnt, the people massacred or carried away captive. Every day brought a fresh story of horror, especially dreadful had been the tale of John Halcomb and 15 companions who had been carried off and sacrificed in a sort of religious ceremony.

"She must be roused. She must see people. I would make her go to the Thanksgiving service," said Mistress Lovejoy. She was a notable manager, and her sister-in-law, with all the village, were wont to submit to her sway; and Patience went to the service.

"There can never more be a day of thanksgiving for me," she thought drearily, as she sat in her widow's weeds in the square wooden pew.

The long, long prayer was finished Patience liked the prayer, for in it she could hide her face. It was never too long for her, although a modern church-goer would be aghast at having to listen to even a sermon of such a length. The psalms of rejoicing had been sung. These had been harder to bear. The preacher had settled into his discourse. He had turned his hour-glass, and was already at "thirdly."

"God in his providence has exceedingly blessed us in delivering us from danger—he was saying. Patience shuddered. What good was it to her to be delivered since John had perished under the Indian tomahawk!

A figure appeared in the doorway. Such a figure! Gaunt, tattered, wild-eyed, unkempt, barefooted, bleeding—a mere skelcton covered with ragged shreds of garments. It stood in the doorway quivering and motioning strangely.

"Patience! Patience!" it cried.

"'Tis some crazy exhorter such as used to come and harrangue the congregations in my grandfather's time," said Judge Fletcher, whose ancestor had been a judge in the days of the persecution of Anabaptists and Quakers. The tithing-man stalked down the aisle to put out the intruder. Some of the men half rose, but sat down again when they saw that the matter was being attended to. It was a dreadful thing in those days to disturb a meeting. But John Halcomb's widow, unmindful of disturbance, started up at the cry and fairly ran down the aisle.

"It is John! It is John!' she cried.

Never had a religious service in Bethlehem Hill been broken up like this one. The minister stopped in the very middle of his most important sentence. The dreaded tithing-man himself, who bore upon his soul the awful responsibility of every man and woman, boy and girl in the meeting-house, forgot it all and cried out like a frightened boy: "It is a ghost!"

But it was not a ghost. It was John Halcomb himself, safe.

The story of the Indian attack on the village of Wyoming in 1778 is a story of marvelous escapes as well as of torture and massacre. No adventure in it seems more marvelous than that of John Halcomb which is one of the well attested stories of history.

With 15 other captives, John Halcomb had been ranged around a large flat stone while a woman fury called "Queen Esther," who seemed at the head of this ceremony of sacrifice of prisoners, crushed the heads of one after the other with a great stone death maul. Two of the captives suddenly leaped to their feet and dashed into the forest. The Indians pursued them but did not shoot, probably because their plan was to bring them back alive and torture them to death. One of the two—and it was John Halcomb—tripped on a vine and rolled down the steep river bank. Then he gave himself up for lost. But the fall, instead of bringing him to death, saved his life. He lodged under the heavy branches of a fallen tree and the pursuers, sure that he was ahead, dashed past it without discovering him. He lay concealed in this lucky hiding place until darkness came. Then wounded, lame, and almost famished, he started out on the journey of days through the trackless forest infested with hostile Indians that lay between him and Patience. A man less brave of heart would have given up a score of times, but there was no give up to John Halcomb. He might be so weakened that he could only crawl, but he crawled on. Tottering, stumbling, crawling, dragging himself along his painful way by inches and in danger of his life all the way, he covered the toilsome miles and came to make for his wife Patience a real Day of Thanksgiving.

OUR NATIONAL BIRDS.

"May one give us peace in all our States,

THANKSGIVING

By STANLEY WATERLOO.

Behold the crowning of the year!
The wheat is garnered from the field;
The season's harvesting is here,
A mighty and abundant yield.
Nor war nor pestilence has come;
Peace still abides throughout the land;
Should we, O Lord, be creatures dumb,
As they who do not understand?

The bins are swollen with the grain,
Broad pastures hold their flocks and herds;
They've borne their fruit, have field and plain,
Gone but the summer and the birds;
The fire's alight in every home,
For all there are the warmth and roof.
The sun still shines, though gray the dome
Life's fabric's fair in warp and woof.

Not ours oppression, nor the lack
Of what gives manhood unto life;
Unbared the head, unwhipped the back,
Unknown the bondsman's hopeless strife.
Blessed among earth's creatures, we,
In pleasant place our lines are cast
Should we not know it all from Thee,
And worship Thee unto the last?

Help us, O Lord, when fortune-fat,
When goods and gear have made us coarse.
In thoughtfulness, O, teach us that
We should remember but the source.
Sturdy in trust, we come today,
Nor come with faltering and tears,
But in proud gratitude, and pray
The bounty of the future years!

The Secret of Thanksgiving

By MARGARET AYER

A SOLITARY and impatient traveler paced the platform of a deserted station.

It was the evening of Thanksgiving day, and through some mischance he had missed the early train that was to take him to town and to Thanksgiving dinner.

The spirit of the day was not with him, for he had two long hours to wait, and it was bitter cold, and for some unaccountable reason the station was locked.

A flagman came to watch for a passing express train. Seeing the traveler's plight, the flagman invited him to come into his shack and warm himself.

The flagman's home was a tiny place, fitted out with the barest necessities, but, in varied contrast to the surroundings, along one side of the wall was a rough pine bookshelf containing well thumbed volumes of all that the world holds greatest in literature, philosophy and science.

After a short conversation the traveler marvelled to find that the flagman possessed a fund of knowledge on most subjects, and of the classics in particular, which would have put many a college professor to blush.

"Why don't you leave this solitary life of hardship and come to the town, where with your learning you will soon be one of the great lights?" asked the traveler, wondering at the flagman's lack of ambition. "Have you no desire to better yourself?"

"No," replied the other, "I am content with my lot. I have outdoor work, indoor quiet with the companionship of my books; I make enough to live on and I want nothing more. I should be out of place among your city folk. My friends are here in the village. What more should I want?"

For hours the traveler argued with the flagman, and his home-bound train passed unheeded. He was interested in trying to save this great intellect for the world, as he termed it, and trying to awaken some spark of ambition in the man, but the flagman refused to be disconcerted.

"Are you satisfied with your position in life—are you contented?" he asked the traveler.

"Of course not," answered the traveler. "I should consider myself lacking in spirit if I were satisfied and did not want to rise higher in life. I shall never be contented until I reach the top of the tree."

"Then," said the flagman, "you are not really thankful for the blessings that you possess, but merely look upon them as stepping-stones to other things. I am grateful for what little I have and am content to enjoy each day as it comes. You go out into the world, conquer it, and find your happiness in the anticipation of your success. Leave me to give thanks for what I am enjoying now, while you go and fight for what you want and hope to enjoy later."

So each man went his way.

The traveler in this incident is typical of the spirit of push and advancement which is almost universal in this land of ours today.

A fine spirit it is, too, for it means a chance for development for the race, but it also includes the spirit of discontent.

There is about us a perfect contagion of dissatisfaction which is necessary to progress, but some of us are running a fair risk of being swamped in the discontent and losing the high aims that prompted it, all because our aims and demands cannot be gratified at once.

There are few of us who, like the flagman, are content with our place in life. Most of us are striving for more blessings of one kind or another, spiritual, mental and worldly.

Would that Thanksgiving were held every day to remind us of the daily blessings of which every one who lives enjoys at least a few!

About the only way you can arouse a man's conscience is to catch him at it.

Appendicitis

Is due in a large measure to abuse of the bowels, by employing drastic purgatives. To avoid all danger, use only Dr. King's New Life Pills, the safe, gentle cleansers and invigorators. Guaranteed to cure headache, biliousness, malaria and jaundice. All Druggists. 25c.

An indolent man draws his breath, but does not live.—Cicero.

You can't be well if you have a weak, unhealthy, tired out stomach. Neither can you feel good if by some irregularity in eating you have caused the stomach to get out of order. These little stomach troubles are sings of indigostion, which may and very often does turn into a very bad case of dyspepsia. Don't allow this to go on a single day without doing something to overcome it. Take some good reliable and safe digestant like KODOL. For Dyspepsia. KODOL is the best remedy known today for heart burn, belching and all troubles arising from a disordered digestion. It is pleasant to take and affords relief promptly. Sold by R. C. Dodson.

He Fought at Gettysburg.

David Parker, of Fayett, N. Y., who lost a foot at Gettysburg, writes: Electric Bitters have done me more good than any medicine I ever took. For several years I had stomach trouble, and paid out much money for medicine for little purpose, until I began taking Electric Bitters. I would not take $500 for what they have done for me." Grand tonic for the aged and for female weaknesses. Great altrative and body builder; cure for lame back and weak kidneys. Guaranteed by All Druggist. 50.

Dog Pets In Hotels.

"The one thing we have more trouble with than anything else," said the manager of one of the large hotels in upper Broadway, "is the fact that women insist on smuggling their pet dogs to their rooms. We have no objection to dogs as dogs. If the animal is not too large or too fierce our guests may take them to their rooms during the day and may even feed them there But we draw the line at having dogs in the bedrooms at night. Any woman with a pet dog can have the beast cared for by the porter at night, and we have specially constructed kennels for all kinds of dogs, and we give them the best of care. But owners of pets seem to think that no one save themselves understands Fido or Gyp The women seem to think that if dog gie has not the comforting assurance of the owner's nearness then doggie will not sleep well. So women try to smuggle their pets to their rooms under their cloaks or by back ways or even bribe one of the porters to take it to their room, believing that we will not hear anything about it.

"As a matter of fact, the first thing the porter does after getting his tip is to tip me, and a couple of hours later the woman is called upon by a clerk who tells her dogs cannot stay in the bedrooms all night.—New York Press.

His Neighbor's Cat.

A Cleveland lawyer tells of a man living in a suburb of that city whose sleep had been disturbed nightly by the howling on his own back fence of his neighbor's cat. At last, in despair he consulted his lawyer.

"There sits the cat every night on our fence," explained the unhappy man, "and he yowls and yowls and yowls. Now, I don't want to have any trouble with this neighbor, but the thing has gone far enough, and I want you to suggest a remedy."

The lawyer looked solemn and said not a word.

"I am well within my rights if I shoot the cat, am I not?" asked the sufferer.

"I would hardly say that," replied the legal light. "The cat does not belong to you, as I understand it."

"No."

"And the fence does?"

"Yes."

"Then," concluded the lawyer, "I think it safe to say that you have a perfect right to tear down the fence."—Lippincott's.

Weeds Worth Millions.

New Zealand flax is one of a number of wild weeds that yield their gatherers great wealth. The flax, the strongest known, grows wild in marshes. When it is cultivated it dwindles and its fibers become brittle and valueless.

Indian hemp grows wild, and out of it hasheesh, or keef, is made. Keef looks like flakes of chopped straw. It is smoked in a pipe; it is eaten on liver; it is drunk in water; it produces an intense, a delirious happiness, and among orientals it takes the place of beer and whisky.

The most valuable weed of all the wild growths is the seaweed. The nitrate beds of South America, which yield something like $65,000,000 a year, are nothing but beds of seaweed decomposed.—Columbus Dispatch.

One Kind of Fame.

Authorities who have in charge some of England's ancient treasures try to discourage the habit of carving initials on these relics. A fine of $15 was recently imposed on a man who had chipped his name in letters six inches high on one of the stones in the "Druids' Circle" near Keswick. Close to the giant stone globe at Swanage a special slab is provided for the harmless reception of the names of all who are addicted to this self advertisement. On popular Alpine summits it is customary for names to be left on cards in emptied wine bottles.—Chicago News.

A Story of Beau Nash.

Beau Nash was not entirely a butterfly, as is proved by the following anecdote: His father was a partner in a glass business at Swansea. This was little known, and the Duchess of Marlborough once twitted him with the obscurity of his birth. "Madam," replied Nash, "I seldom mention my father in company, not because I have any reason to be ashamed of him, but because he has some reason to be ashamed of me."

Subduing Mother's Voice.

The successful merchant invited his parents to visit him in New York city. They came gladly and on the following Sabbath were escorted to a fashionable church in Fifth avenue. Some of the hymns were familiar. In their rendition the visiting pair contributed heavily, with the credit for volume in favor of the father. Although not always in correct time and sometimes in discord, yet the joy of this good couple leaped forth in joyous praise, and they did not see the glowering looks of nearby worshipers or the beetlike face of their devoted son.

"Father," explained the merchant that afternoon while his mother was taking her accustomed nap, "in our churches the congregations do very little singing. It is left entirely to the choir."

"I know, my boy," said the old man as he lovingly placed a hand on his son's shoulder, "that it was very embarrassing to you this morning, but if I hadn't sung as loudly as I did the people would have heard your mother."—New York Press.

Mr. Felt being absent not a man was allowed to come near the residence. All went well until late in the morning when the brave lasses thought of burglars and called in a neighbor with a revolver to protect them. However, they enjoyed the visit just the same.

Lottery at White House.

The White House was the scene of lottery drawing on Monday in which the federal patronage of the state of South Dakota was disposed of. The President of the United States turned the wheel of fortune, and Senators Kittridge and Gamble drew out the prize packages.

Many federal offices in South Dakota are vacant on account of the inability of Kittridge and Gamble to agree upon applicants. When the two senators fore-gathered at the White House today they were still unable to agree upon recommnedations.

President Raosevelt suggested that they draw lots. They consented.

If you want to enjoy a comedy that is interesting, that will cause you to laugh as you have never laughed before, be sure and witness the Farce comedy, "A Good Fellow" at the Emporium Opera House, on Wednesday evening, Dec 4th.

THE SALOONS MUST GO

Judge Hall Gives Public Notice from the Bench that the Licenses of Ridgway's Three Saloons Will Not be Renewed.

Ridgway Advocate.

After the jury had retired Thursday night in the case of the Commonwealth against Antonio Muscatello, who was charged with stabbing Frank Degnan during a brawl which occurred in front of Ross Drug store on Main street one Saturday night last August, Judge Hall made the following remarks from the bench:

Not long ago a man had his throat cut in a drunken brawl in the saloon of G. W. Shelander in the block opposite this Court House. An indictment was presented to the Grand Jury at a former term against the man who did the cutting and was ignored. I am satisfied that this action on the part of the Grand Jury was not because of lack of evidence to sustain the indictment, but because the trial of the case would have disclosed that a crowd of young boys had become drunk in that saloon.

In the case which has just been submitted to the jury, it has been proved beyond question that a number of boys, so youthful in appearance that no man could have mistaken their minority were served with drinks in "The Salberg" on the evening of this affray and although there is every reason to believe that they were already intoxicated when they went there they had no difficulty in buying drinks either on account of their age or their condition.

There are three saloons in that block. It is in the shopping district in the principal part of the town and is necessarily the constant resort of ladies and children, yet it is a daily and more especially a nightly occurrence to see crowds of intoxicated men congregated on the sidewalk in front of one or more of these saloons engaged in profane and abscene discourse which the passersby cannot help hearing. This I have witnessed myself hundreds of times, and it is a source of constant and just complaint on the part of the ladies of this town. No effort apparently is made by the police to abate this nuisance so long as actual hostilties do not occur, although it seems to me they could prevent it in a large measure if they were so disposed. There is a good hotel at each end of that block, each of which is a source of credit to our town and entitled to our support. There are others close by, in umbers quite sufficient, I think, to supply all the reasonable demands of the public for liquor. Under these circumstances we are of the opinion that the three drinking places opposite the Court House are entirely unnecessary and that their maintenance in that locality is a blot on our otherwise orderly town which should no longer be permitted.

As my colleagues on the Bench are in entire accord with me in this opinion, I mention it at this time, and in this public manner in order that the several parties holding those licenses may have notice that they will not be again renewed, and they may have an opportunity to arrange their business affairs accordingly.

SYNOPSIS.

Arthur Warrington, American consul to Barscheit, tells how reigning Grand Duke attempts to force his neice, Princess Hildegarde, to marry Prince Dopplekinn, an old widower. Warrington does not know the princess even by sight. While riding horseback in the country night overtakes him and he seeks accommodations in a dilapidated castle. Here he finds two women and an old man servant. One woman is Princess Hildegarde and the other a friend, Hon. Betty Moore, of England. They detain him to witness a mock marriage between the princess and a disgraced army officer, Steinbock, done for the purpose of foiling the grand duke. Steinbock attempts to kiss the princess and she is rescued by Warrington. Steinbock disappears for good. Max Scharfenstein, an old American friend of Warrington's reaches Barscheit. Warrington tells him of the princess. Scharfenstein shows Warrington a locket with a picture of a woman inside. It was on his neck when he, as a boy, was picked up and adopted by his foster father, whose name he was given. He believes it to be a picture of his mother. The grand duke announces to the princess that she is to marry Dopplekinn the following week. During a morning's ride she plans to escape. She meets Scharfenstein. He finds a purse she has dropped but does not discover her identity.

CHAPTER VII.

"The one fault I have to find with European life is the poor quality of tobacco used."

It was eight o'clock, Thursday night, the night of the dinner at Muller's. I was dressing when Max entered, with a miserable cheroot between his teeth.

"They say," he went on, "that in Russia they drink the finest tea in the world, simply because it is brought overland and not by sea. Unfortunately, tobacco—we Americans recognize no leaf as tobacco unless it comes from Cuba—has to cross the sea, and is, in some unaccountable manner, weakened in the transit. There are worse cigars in Germany than in France, and I wouldn't have believed it possible, if I had not gone to the trouble of proving it. Fine country! For a week I've been trying to smoke the German quality of the weed, as a preventive, but I see I must give it up on account of my throat. My boy, I have news for you,"—tossing the cheroot into the grate.

"Fire away," said I, struggling with a collar.

"I have a box of Havanas over at the custom house that I forgot to bail out."

"No!" said I joyfully. A Havana, and one of Scharfenstein's!

"I've an idea that they would go well with the dinner. So, if you don't mind, I'll trot over and get 'em."

"Be sure and get around to Muller's at half-past eight, then," said I.

"I'll be there." He knew where to find the place.

Muller's rathskeller was the rendezvous of students, officers and all those persons of quality who liked music with their meat. The place was low-ceilinged, but roomy, and the ventilation was excellent, considering. The smoke never got so thick that one couldn't see the way to the door when the students started in "to clean up the place," to use the happy idiom of mine own country. There were marble tables and floors and arches and light, cane-bottomed chairs from Kohn's. It was at once Bohemian and cosmopolitan, and, once inside, it was easy to imagine oneself in Vienna. A Hungarian orchestra occupied an inclosed platform, and every night the wail of the violin and the pom-pom of the wool-tipped hammers on the Hungarian "piano" might be heard.

It was essentially a man's place of entertainment; few women ever had the courage or the inclination to enter. In America it would have been the fashion; but in the capital of Barscheit the women ate in the restaurant above, which was attached to the hotel, and depended upon the Volksgarten band for their evening's diversion.

You had to order your table hours ahead—that is, if you were a civilian. If you were lucky enough to be an officer, you were privileged to take any vacant chair you saw. But heaven aid you if you attempted to do this not being an officer! In Barscheit there were also many unwritten laws, and you were obliged to observe these with all the fidelity and attention that you gave to the enameled signs. Only the military had the right to request the orchestra to repeat a piece of music. Sometimes the lieutenants, seized with that gay humor known only to cubs, would force the orchestra in Muller's to play the Hungarian war song till the ears cried out in pain. This was always the case when any Austrians happened to be present. But ordinarily the crowds were good-natured, boisterous, but orderly.

It was here, then, that I had arranged to give my little dinner. The orchestra had agreed—for a liberal tip—to play "The Star-spangled Banner," and there was a case of Doppelkinn's sparkling Moselle. I may as well state right here that we neither heard our national anthem nor drank the vintage. You will soon learn why. I can laugh now, I can treat the whole affair with becoming levity, but at the time I gained several extra gray hairs.

If the princess hadn't turned around and if Max hadn't wanted that box of Havanas!

When I arrived at Muller's I found my boys in a merry mood. They were singing softly from "Robin Hood" with fine college harmony, and as I entered they swarmed about me like so many young dogs. Truth to tell, none of them was under 20, and two or three were older than myself. But to them I represented official protection for whatever they might do. I assumed all the dignity I dared. I had kept Scharfenstein's name back as a surprise.

Ellis—for whom I had the passports—immediately struck me as being so nearly like Max that they might easily have been brothers. Ellis was slighter; that was all the difference. I gave him his papers and examined his tickets. All was well; barring accidents, he would be in Dresden the next day.

"You go through Doppelkinn, then?" said I.

"Yes. I have friends in Dresden whom I wish to see before going home."

"Well, good luck to you!"

Then I announced that Max Scharfenstein, an old college comrade, would join us presently. This was greeted with hurrahs. At that time there wasn't an American student who did not recollect Max's great run from the ten-yard line. (But where the deuce was Max?) I took a little flag from my pocket and stuck it into the vase of poppies, and the boys clapped their hands. You never realize how beautiful your flag is till you see it in a foreign land. I apologized for Max's absence, explaining the cause, and ordered dinner to be served. We hadn't much time, as Ellis' train departed at ten. It was now a quarter of nine.

"He Tranquilly Pulled Out a Murderous-Looking Colt and Laid It Beside His Plate."

We had come to the relishes when a party of four officers took the table nearest us. They hung up their sabers on the wall-pegs, and sat down, ordering a bottle of light wine. Usually there were five chairs to the table, but even if only two were being used no one had the right to withdraw one of the vacant chairs without the most elaborate apologies. This is the law of courtesy in Barscheit. In America it is different; if you see anything you want, take it.

Presently one of the officers—I knew none of them save by sight—rose and approached. He touched the flag insolently and inquired what right it had in a public restaurant in Barscheit. Ordinarily his question would not have been put without some justification. But he knew very well who I was and what my rights were in this instance.

"Herr Lieutenant," said I coldly, though my cheeks were warm enough, "I represent that flag in this country, and I am accredited with certain privileges, as doubtless you are aware. You will do me the courtesy of returning to your own table." I bowed.

He glared at me for a brief period, then turned on his heel. This was the first act in the play. At the fellow's table sat Lieut. von Storer, Doppelkinn's nephew and heir-presumptive. He was, to speak plainly, a rake, a spendthrift and wholly untrustworthy. He was not ill-looking, however.

My spirits floated between anger and the fear that the officers might ruin the dinner—which they eventually did.

Things went on smoothly for a time. The orchestra was pom-pomming the popular airs from "Faust." (Where the deuce was that tow-headed Dutchman?) Laughter rose and fell; the clinkle of glass was heard; voices called. And then Max came in, looking as cool as you please, though I could read by his heaving chest that he had been sprinting up back streets. The boys crowded around him, and there was much ado over the laggard.

Unfortunately the waiter had forgotten to bring a chair for his plate. With a genial smile on his face, Max innocently stepped over to the officers' table and plucked forth the vacant chair. For a wonder the officers appeared to give this action no heed, and I was secretly gratified. It was something to be a consul, after all. But I counted my chickens too early.

"Where are the cigars?" I asked as Max sat down complacently.

"Cigars?"—blankly. "Hang me, I've clean forgotten them!" And then, oblivious of the probable storm that was at that moment gathering for a downpour over his luckless head, he told us the reason of his delay.

"There was a crowd around the palace," he began. "It seems that the Princess Hildegarde has run away, and they believe that she has ridden toward the Pass in a closed carriage. The police are at this very moment scouring the country in that direction. She has eloped."

"Eloped?" we all cried, being more or less familiar with the state of affairs at the palace.

"Good-by to Doppelkinn's frau!"

"Good girl!"

"She has been missing since seven o'clock, when she drove away on the pretense of visiting her father's old steward, who is ill," went on Max, feeling the importance of his news. "They traced her there. From the steward's the carriage was driven south, and that's the last seen of her. There won't be any wedding at the cathedral next Tuesday,"—laughing.

Queries and answers were going crisscross over the table, when I observed with dread that Lieut. von Storer had risen and was coming our way. He stopped at Max's side. Max looked up to receive Von Storer's glove full on the cheek. It was no gentle stroke. Von Storer at once returned to his table and sat down.

For a moment we were all absolutely without power of motion or of speech. Max's face grew as white as the table-cloth, and the print of the glove glowed red against the white. I was horrified, for I knew his tremendous strength. If he showed fight, Von Storer would calmly saber him. It was the custom. But Max surprised me. He was the coolest among us, but of that quality of coolness which did not reassure me. He took up his story where he had left off and finished it. For his remarkable control I could have taken him in my arms and hugged him.

The officers scowled, while Von Storer bit his mustache nervously. The American had ignored his insult. Presently he rose again and approached. He thrust a card under Max's nose.

"Can you understand that?" he asked contemptuously.

Max took the card, ripped it into quarters and dropped these to the floor. Then, to my terror and the terror of those with me, he tranquilly pulled out a murderous looking Colt and laid it beside his plate. He went on talking, but none of us heard a word he said. We were fearfully waiting to see him kill some one or be killed.

No one was killed. The officers hurriedly took down their sabers and made a bee-line for the door of which I have spoken.

Max returned the revolver to his hip-pocket and gave vent to an Homeric laugh.

"You tow-headed Dutchman!" I cried, when I found voice for my words, "what have you done?"

"Done? Why, it looks as if we had all the downs this half," he replied smartly. "Oh, the gun isn't loaded,"—confidentially.

Ellis fumbled in his pocket and produced his passports and tickets. These he shoved over to Max.

ENCOURAGING FACTS

THOSE CONTEMPLATING CHANGE OF RESIDENCE SHOULD READ THEM.

The other day the writer was in the Office of the Canadian Government at St. Paul, Minnesota. On the windows of the building were signs to the effect that homesteads of 160 acres were given free to actual settlers, and in the windows were displays of wheat, oats, barley, other grains and vegetables, which he was told were grown in Western Canada. This could be readily believed for in no other country on the Continent would it be possible to grow such splendid specimens. The world is now pretty well advised that in the growing of such cereals as have been named and vegetables as well the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have no competitor. For several years past specimens have been exhibited at State and County Fairs throughout the State, and these exhibits are looked upon as one of the chief attractions. They have demonstrated what can be done in the climate of a country possessing a soil that will grow things. But that it was possible to grow vegetables such as were seen there seemed to create some doubt. But it was the case. And apples too. Not of course the splendid fruit grown in countries more congenial to such culture, but they were in evidence. Throughout Indiana, the hoosier farmers were forced to stop and think. When a similar exhibit was placed before them during the past few weeks, many of them were forced to stop and remark. "That is much ahead of anything we can do. The quality of the grain we have conceded, for has not so-and-so sent us samples grown on his own farm the like of which we had never seen before. But to think of the vegetables—and such vegetables. Why, we thought everything was frozen up there, and these turnips, cabbages, cauliflowers, beets, mangolds, pumpkins, and squashes are away ahead of anything we ever saw grow." That is the story everywhere. Thousands of Western Canada homesteaders, formerly United States citizens, are growing just such grain, just such vegetables, which yield them a splendid profit with little outlay on the farms that they have secured from the Government of the Dominion of Canada at the nominal cost of $10 for 160 acres. If adjoining land is wanted it can be secured from the railway companies or from private individuals at moderate prices and reasonable terms. By placing your name and address on a postal card and addressing it to the Canadian Government Agent, whose name appears elsewhere, a copy of "Last Best West" telling you all about it will be sent you free.

HOW HE FOUND THE KEY.

Brother's Method Was Simple, but Also Somewhat Costly.

Miss Dresswell had just returned, after spending a week with a country friend. Imagine her consternation when she discovered her previously well-stocked wardrobe empty!

"Gracious, George!" she said to her brother. "Where are all my clothes? And what in the world is that great black patch on the lawn?"

The face of George exhibited all the well-known signs of conscious righteousness, and he met her gaze unflinchingly.

"Maria," he replied consolingly, "you wrote to me that if I wanted the key of the billiard room I should find it in the pocket of your bolero."

"Yes, yes!"

"Well, I don't know a bolero from a fichu or a box pleat, so I took all the things to the lawn and burnt them. Then I recovered the key from the ashes."

She froze him with a stare, and he is now thawing slowly on the kitchen stove.—Stray Stories.

DOCTORS ORGANIZE UNION.

Toronto Physicians Fix Higher Scale of Prices.

Toronto, Ont.—The doctors of this city west of Yonge street have formed a union under the name "No. 11 Territorial Division of the College of Physicians and Surgeons." The objects of the organization are to improve the condition of the profession against quacks, establish minimum fees and amend lodge terms. The lowest fee for medical examination for fraternal societies has been fixed at $2, while the minimum fee for minor operations has been fixed at $10, and that for major operations at $50. For a first visit to a patient $2 hereafter will be charged, and $1 for each subsequent visit, while the fee for night visits will be doubled, being fixed at $3. The charge for an office visit has been made $1, including prescription, while to give anesthetics $5 will be charged.

COULD USE THE ROAD.

Irish Soldier's Great Idea When Cover Was Badly Needed.

The following colloquy is said to have actually occurred during one of the earlier battles in the Philippines:

A detachment of American infantry, under orders to support a section of Capt. Reilly's battery, were halted for quite a while on a perfectly flat military road in full view and fine range of the Filipino trenches. Of course, to lie flat on the road was the only available "use of cover."

In this detachment was an Irishman who had served his time with the colors in the British army before he enlisted with Uncle Sam. As a recruit he had been very prone to tell how the British soldiers did everything. As a result he was incessantly plied with questions as to his experiences. While the bullets were "plopping" down the road and kicking up the gravel, a young Yankee suddenly asked:

"Say, Mike, what do the British soldiers do with their heads in a place like this?"

Quick as a flash came the retort:

"A British soldier has no head, sorr!"

After a full two-minute pause, Mike continued:

"However, be that as it may, I wish I could pick up this d— road and stan' it on edge ferninst me!"

DOCTORS IN GRAND JURY NET.

Two Indicted in Iowa for Conspiracy to Force an Independent Physician from a Surgical Case.

Waverly, Ia.—The Bremner county grand jury, which a few weeks ago indicted fourteen members of the county medical association, alleging violation of the anti-trust law, recently reported additional indictments against Dr. W. A. Rohlf and Dr. O. L. Chaffee on the general ground of conspiracy. Their alleged offense was of forcing an independent doctor from a surgical case, in which he as well as one of the accused doctors had been employed, after he had refused to sign the union scale.

FOUND OUT JUST IN TIME.

Or Finger Bowl Would Have Been Put to Novel Use.

The late William Cassidy, one-time editor of the Albany Argus, possessed the traditional Irish wit. On one occasion, a number of years ago, he was a guest at a political banquet in Albany. At that time finger bowls were seldom used, and their correct usage (a passing fad) meant to dip a corner of the napkin in the water and therewith daintily cleanse the finger tips. Most of the men present eyed the innovation, when introduced at dessert, narrowly and uncertainly. One after another ended by plunging the hand into the crystal dish. But Mr. Robert Pruyn, a well-known Albany gentleman, correctly moistened a bit of his napkin and laved his fingers. Mr. Cassidy watched him admiringly, not having as yet touched his own glass. "That's good," he whispered to a neighbor. "That's good. If Pruyn hadn't done that I should have put my foot in it."—Harper's Weekly.

An Acute Observer.

A one-armed man sat down to his noonday luncheon in a little restaurant the other day, and seated on the right of him was a big, sympathetic individual from the rural district.

The big fellow noticed his neighbor's left sleeve hanging loose and kept eyeing him in a sort of how-did-it-happen way. The one-armed man failed to break the ice, but continued to keep busy with his one hand supplying the inner man.

At last the inquisitive one on the right could stand it no longer. He changed his position a little, cleared his throat and said: "I see, sir, you have lost an arm."

Whereupon the unfortunate man picked up the empty sleeve with his right hand, peered into it, looked up with a surprised expression, and said: "By George, sir, you're right."

Not to Be Thought Of.

There was once a multi-millionaire (he was very "multi," indeed) who spent immense sums of money on his children. They had everything, including four automobiles and a steam yacht each.

Still they were not satisfied.

"Can you not," they implored, "spend a little time with us, now and then?"

"Time!" cried the multi-millionaire, greatly shocked. "No, no! You are dreaming. It is impossible."

This fable teaches that time is not money, in any practical sense.—Exchange.

PERUNA A TONIC OF GREAT USEFULNESS.

HON. R. S. THARIN

Hon. R. S. Tharin, Attorney at Law and counsel for Anti-Trust League, writes from Pennsylvania Ave., N. W., Washington, D. C., as follows:

"Having used Peruna for catarrhal disorders, I am able to testify to its great remedial excellence and do not hesitate to give it my emphatic endorsement and earnest recommendation to all persons affected by that disorder. It is also a tonic of great usefulness."

Mr. T. Barnecott, West Aylmer, Ontario, Can., writes: "Last winter I was ill with pneumonia after having la grippe. I took Peruna for two months, when I became quite well. I also induced a young lady, who was all run down and confined to the house, to take Peruna, and after taking Peruna for three months she is able to follow her trade of tailoring. I can recommend Peruna for all such who are ill and require a tonic."

Pe-ru-na Tablets.

Some people prefer to take tablets, rather than to take medicine in a fluid form. Such people can obtain Peruna tablets, which represent the solid medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna.

New and Liberal Homestead Regulations in

WESTERN CANADA

New Districts Now Opened for Settlement

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Some of the choicest lands in the grain growing belts of Saskatchewan and Alberta have recently been opened for settlement under the Revised Homestead Regulations of Canada. Thousands of homesteads of 160 acres each are now available. The new regulations make it possible for entry to be made by proxy, the opportunity that many in the United States have been waiting for. Any member of a family may make entry for any other member of the family, who may be entitled to make entry for himself or herself. Entry may now be made before the Agent or Sub-Agent of the District by proxy, (on certain conditions) by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

"Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the North-West Provinces, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person the sole head of a family, or male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, or 160 acres, more or less."

The fee in each case will be $10.00. Churches, schools and markets convenient. Healthy climate, splendid crops and good laws. Grain-growing and cattle raising principal industries.

Distinction and Difference.

In Dean Ramsay's book of anecdotes there is one which refers to a conversation between a Scotch minister and a sexton. The minister was a stranger to the gravemaker, and discussed with him the doctrines of the neighboring clergy. As one after another was mentioned the sexton wagged his head gloomily, and said: "He's no sound." At last the minister—who was a long-winded and rather empty preacher—mentioned his own name, and inquired: "Mr. —— now, isn't he sound?" "Oo, aye," said the sexton, with a twinkle in his eye. "He's a' sound."

His Word Not Good.

John and Jim agreed to settle a difference by fighting it out. It was understood that whoever wanted to quit should cry "'nough!" John got Jim down and was hammering him soundly, when Jim cried "'nough!" But John paid no attention to his cry and kept on pounding him. Again and again Jim called out "'nough! But John paid no heed and kept busy with his fists. A boy standing near asked: "Why don't you let the feller up? He's yelled "'nough!"

"But he's such a liar you can't believe him."

The Barker and St. Luke.

The rubberneck wagon, filled with sightseers, was approaching St. Luke's hospital, says the New York Times. A white-haired woman stood in the grounds, and near her a man was using a lawn mower.

"There," said the barker, with a swing of his arm toward the hospital, "is St. Luke's hospital, one of the most noted in the metropolis. The white-haired lady is one of the nurses, and there you see St. Luke himself cutting the grass."

Troublesome Growth.

"Does the child ever keep still a minute?" asked the woman as the youngster sprawled noisily over the couch in a dozen squirming positions at once, it seemed to her.

"No," answered his mother. "They are growing when they do that, they say."

"Will you please ask him to stop growing," implored the woman, "just for this week while he is visiting me?"

SCHOOL TEACHERS

Also Have Things to Learn.

"For many years I have used coffee and refused to be convinced of its bad effect upon the human system," writes a veteran school teacher.

"Ten years ago I was obliged to give up my much loved work in the public schools after years of continuous labor. I had developed a well defined case of chronic coffee poisoning.

"The troubles were constipation, flutterings of the heart, a thumping in the top of my head and various parts of my body, twitching of my limbs, shaking of my head, and, at times after exertion, a general "gone" feeling with a toper's desire for very strong coffee. I was a nervous wreck for years.

"A short time ago friends came to visit us and they brought a package of Postum with them, and urged me to try it. I was prejudiced because some years ago I had drunk a cup of weak, tasteless stuff called Postum which I did not like at all.

"This time, however, my friend made the Postum according to directions on the package, and it won me. Suddenly I found myself improving in a most decided fashion.

"The odor of boiling coffee no longer tempts me. I am so greatly benefited by Postum that if I continue to improve as I am now, I'll begin to think I have found the Fountain of Perpetual Youth. This is no fancy letter but stubborn facts which I am glad to make known."

FARM AND GARDEN

THREE HORSES ON A WAGON.

Successful Method Followed by One Farmer in Illinois.

Bolt one end of a 1x4 oak block 15 inches long (A) on the upper side of the tongue in the hammer hole, putting an iron brace on under side of tongue and block. Put bolt through middle hole of tripletree and end hole of block. Put that bolt through ring in the end of a common wagon stay chain on upper side of tripletree, also through another chain on under side of block. Pass the two chains diagonally across the tongue hounds, one above, the other below, and hook them into a third stay chain put around the front axletree just outside of front hounds. The purpose of the block is to keep the tripletree away from the tongue so that the horses can work freely. The draft all comes on the chain. The tendency of the block is to push the tongue to the right; the tendency of the chain, to pull it to the left. They balance each other and the draft is straight.

Diagram of the Tripletree.

Our meadows were so soft this summer that most farmers used four horses on their hay loaders. I used three, with this hitch, and did the work well, writes an Illinois correspondent of Wallace's Farmer. It can be changed from one wagon to another in less than three minutes. To do so remove bolt from tongue and unhook chains. It is so simple and cheap that any farmer can make one in a few minutes.

I have used such a hitch on my land roller for 25 years, except that I have a rod instead of a chain for the draft. Any three-horse hitch fastened to the tongue as a doubletree will crowd the middle horse and make the team work hard.

For driving the team put lines on the outside horses, snapping checks to the bit of inside horse; fasten inside bits of outside horses to hame rings of middle horse with hitch reins. With such a hitch as this in front and behind there is no need of a fast horse or a slow horse, of urging one forward or holding another back. The draft is equal on each, and each horse is equally well guided or backed with the lines.

I often wanted to take an "empty" out or bring a loaded wagon in with two horses. To do so, put a common doubletree clevis through the ring that connects the two clevis at the short end of tripletree, put clevis pin through hole in doubletree strap. The draft is straight and hitch so short that tripletree will not rub wheel.

POINTS FOR THE FARMER.

A teaspoonful or two of oilmeal a day may be fed to breeding ewes, especially during the winter.

England's potato crop averages over six tons an acre. Russia grows barely two tons to the acre, and Italy little over one and three-fourths tons.

Most hired men chafe under nagging at trifling omissions and commissions. The farmer who has the habit of picking flaws is sure to lose love and respect.

Oats may in some instances be profitably used as a nurse crop by sowing a less quantity of the seed than is usual and then cutting the oats for hay as soon as in head.

While it is all right to have the milk cows in good, thrifty condition, a cow that is giving a mess of rich milk will hardly be fat. In fact if milch cows put feed onto their backs they are not putting it into the pail.

The average man is pretty liable to forget all about being kind to the cow when he is compelled to milk a kicking heifer in a hot stable, together with the flies and mosquitoes humming around like a swarm of bees hunting for a place to "hive." It's good-by theory then.

Leguminous Forage Plants.

A leguminous plant is one that has pods. Some of the pods are very small, like those on the clover, while other pods are large, like those on the bean and pea. There are many wild plants whose pods are so small as not to attract attention from the casual passerby. But in all cases the legumes are good things to grow, for the reason that they are themselves rich in nitrogen and as forage plants supply protein to the animals eating them, and also gather nitrogen from the air by which they fill their roots and so leave the soil richer in nitrogen than they find it. Every farmer should endeavor to grow some leguminous plants.

VETERAN OF THREE WARS.

A Pioneer of Colorado and Nebraska.

Matthias Campbell, veteran of the civil war and two Indian wars, and a pioneer of Colorado, now living at 218 East Nebraska Street, Blair, Neb., says: "I had such pains in my back for a long time that I could not turn in bed, and at times there was an almost total stoppage of the urine. My wife and I have both used Doan's Kidney Pills for what doctors diagnosed as advanced kidney troubles, and both of us have been completely cured."

FOUR SHAFTS OF HUMOR.

Pithy Remarks from One of the Foremost Jokesmiths.

With the truly artistic temperament the bird in the bush has scant notion of doubling its value by changing to the hand.

A has-been is a man who has spent his time with hair vigors, electric brushes and newspaper recipes, when he should have been winning a laurel wreath to cover his ignominy with.

When you enter a shop state just what you want. For then the merchant can go intelligently to work to sell you something else. The great law of commerce is to sell people what they don't want. What they do want will sell itself.

But, probably it is no harder to live up to your reputation when you are young than it will be to live it down when you are older.—Puck.

ITCHING RASH 18 YEARS.

Girl's Rash Spread and Grew Worse Under Specialist's Care—Perfect Cure by Cuticura Remedies.

"When my daughter was a baby she had a breaking out behind the ears. The doctor said that she would outgrow it, and it did get somewhat better until she was about fifteen years old, and after that she could get nothing that would drive it away. She was always applying something in the way of salves. It troubled her behind the knees, opposite the elbows, back of the neck and ears, under the chin, and then it got on the face. That was about three years ago. She took treatment with a specialist and seemed to get worse all the time. We were then advised to try the Cuticura Remedies, and now I don't see any breaking out. M. Curley, 11-19 Sixteenth St., Bay City, Mich., May 20, 1906."

Couldn't Discharge Him.

When the jury had filed in for at least the fourth time, with no sign of coming to an agreement in the bribery case, the disgusted judge rose up and said: "I discharge this jury."

At this, one sensitive talesman, stung to the quick by this abrupt and ill-sounding decision, obstinately faced the judge.

"You can't discharge me, judge!" he retorted.

"Why not?" asked the astonished judge.

"Because," announced the talesman, pointing to the defendant's lawyer, "I'm being paid by that man there!"—Lippincott's.

No Nature Fake.

The alleged case of a bird making a splint for its broken leg is no more wonderful than this:

A Welsh rabbit, about to be devoured by an enemy, made itself stringy and tied the strings to a plate, fork and toast in a brave effort to keep from being dragged to its doom.

I saw this with my own eyes but refrain from giving my right name for fear of drawing upon me displeasure. —Herald and Presbyter.

Suit Couldn't Concern Him.

True to His Promise.

A teacher in a tenement district hurried from the school to find the mother of a pupil who had been taken quite ill.

"Can you show me where Mrs. Angelo Scandale lives?" she inquired of a cherub transplanted from the sunny south to a dark, sunless alley.

"Yes, teach', I show you," and a willing, sticky hand dragged her on with such speed as to make her stumble over an Italian dame seated on the threshold.

After the teacher's breathless flight toward the clouds, the little hand stopped tugging.

"There where Mees Scandale live," indicated the horizontal arm and finger, "but she downstair sitting on the step," finished the smiling lips.—Harper's Magazine.

Missed His Vocation.

Reginald de Koven, the composer, tells of a grocer and a druggist who attended a Wagner concert. As the program did not please them they began talking on music in general and on Wagner in particular.

"Another example of the fact that every man wants to do something out of his line," said the druggist.

"That's all right," assented the grocer. "Now, I'm a grocer, but I've always wanted to be a banker."

"You'd probably fail," added the druggist. "Look at me. I'm a success as a druggist, yet I've always wanted to write a book. This man Wagner tries his hand at music. Just listen to it. And yet we all know he builds good parlor cars!"—Success.

In the Church.

"Of course," said Tess at Miss Yerner's wedding to Mr. Timmid, "the bride looks lovely, as brides always do."

"Yes," replied Jess, "but the bridegroom doesn't. He appears rather run down."

"Run down? Oh, yes; caught after a long chase."

Score another for John Sangerfield Jordan. John S. Jordan secured another bear Tuesday morning in Dry Run. It was a young bear but in good condition. This makes five this season. John says on account of the enticing bait he uses the bears simply can't resist coming after it. He did not expect to get any more bears until the lakes froze over as the bears all went to Canada but he thinks this bear swam the lake to try Levi's onions and Williams peanut butter. Incidentally John has added four more coon skins to his collection of furs. It's Four Miles turn now. Where is Sinnamahoning?

A head on collision occurred between Angelo Bocashio, the night track walker, and a black and white polecat, one mile west of Hy Tower, Monday evening. Angelo was making fast time to reach the tower ahead of the flyer and when the crash came things happened rapidly. Angelo claims the polecat had no classification signals out but he was not long in discovering the kind of an obstruction he collided with. When Angelo reached the tower we felt that there was trouble in the air and Operator Getchell went out of the window while Sullivan and Smith fell down stairs. A warrant was sworn out by W. H. Smith and Angelo was brought before Squire Sullivan who sentenced him to buy a new pair of trousers and bury the damaged ones for a period of thirty days. Aside from the heavy air there was no further damage. Angelo says:

The little robin's song is sweet,
The crow sings very plain;
The polecat sings no song at all,
But he gets there just the same.

And if it were not for the fast sprinting of Danny, he would undoubtedly be going yet. Danny now wears the championship belt and challenges any other runner in the county.

SINNAMAHONING.

The Liars Club met on Friday night as per call, but nothing of much interest was doing in the beginning. Frank Tice fell asleep on the waiting bench but when one of the members reported a scarcity of bucks in this vicinity, and said they had all gone to Harrisburg for a permit to camp on state lands, it brought Tice to his senses, he declared he would kill a cotton tail, horns or no horns, before the season closed. Batchelder reported he got a toe of a will cat in one of his traps, which was produced as evidence and he was fined six cents for bringing proof. There was lots of bear stories sprung and some very narrow escapes made. One member said he saw a doe and a fawn not over twenty feet from him but could not shoot as $100 bills are a scarcity here. Pap Blodget is feeling bad as some one shot to death his pet maltese cat, which he prized very highly he has the sympathy of the club. No further business the club adjourned sine die.

FIDE.

Hunting stories is about all one can hear now.

You tax the kidneys—overwork them.
They can't keep up the continual strain.
The back gives out—it aches and pains,
Urinary troubles set in.
Don't wait longer—take Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. A. J. Andrews, N. Main St., Port Allegany, Pa., says: "I have used a great many remedies for the relief of kidney trouble but have never found anything to give such beneficial effect as Doan's Kidney Pills. I suffered constantly with backache and pains. In the morning it was with the greatest difficulty that I arose and if I attempted to stoop or lift anything, sharp thrusts of pain were the result. Headaches and a tired feeling were also present and it was with difficulty that my ordinary duties were performed. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me relief at once and at the present time, I am much better in every way. For the results received, I am glad to give my grateful recommendation of Doan's Kidney Pills."
